

Konstantinos Noulas has completed his graduate and post-graduate archaeological studies at the Aristotele University of Thessaloniki. At the moment he is a PhD candidate at the same university studying The Coroplastic Production of Pydna. He is an archaeologist at the Ephorate of Antiquities of Pieria. He has participated in many excavations at the territory of North Pieria, including the sites of Pydna and ancient Methone. His special interests are Ancient Greek Religion, Burial Customs, as well as Hellenistic Pottery and Coroplastic Studies.